A POOR OUTLOOK

For Much Business to be Transacted by the Present Congress.

Continual Delay Caused by Filibustering by the Republicans.

General Telegraphic News From all Quarters.

A Poor Outlook.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 11.—It must be confessed that the outlook for a business session of congress is far from promising. Half a week or more has been wasted already. A useless political squabble on the part of the republicans is being protracted from day to day in the house to the exclusion of very important matters. Everybody admits that General Garfield was elected president and will be inaugurated if he lives. Then what is the use of fighting over a bill to regulate the electoral count as the republicans are doing? If the democratic congress shall pass the bill, and it really conflicts with the constitution, as the republicans claim, that furnishes ample reason for its veto by the president. It looks very much as if the republicans in the house are more desirous of wasting time in discussing useless political questions than of transacting the public business. It is hardly to be expected that the democratic suggestion to dispense with the usual holiday recess, in order that the work of the session may be pushed forward, will be adopted by the republicans. The republicans will insist on the holiday trip homeward being taken, and it will in all probability be nearing the middle of January before congress gets down to hard work. The indications now are that the debate over the electoral count bill in the house will run until the adjournment for the holidays.

There is but one way to stop this, and that is for the democrats to notify the republicans that unless they stop their filibustering on the bills they (the democrats) will refuse to allow a quorum to meet to witness the electoral count, and thus make void the declaration of Garfield's election.

The Yorktown Celebration.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—A meeting of the committee of commissioners of the Yorktown centennial celebration from the different states of the Union was held, yesterday afternoon. The following resolution was finally adopted:

Resolved, That the commissioners respectfully ask the governors of their respective states to take such measures as will secure a sufficient appropriation from their legislatures to enable their states to take suitable part in the celebration.

Soon after the meeting adjourned, to meet at the Yorktown celebration unless called together sooner by the chairman.

Took the Oath of Office.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—The following newly appointed officials appeared at the mayor's office early this morning, and took the oath of office, respectively: Comptroller, Allen Campbell; commissioner of public works, Hubert O. Thompson; police justices, Luton B. Smith, Maurice J. Power and Hugh Gardner. Commissioner Thompson filed bonds, with Thomas Butler and Justice Murray as bondsmen.

Washington Notes.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The house committee has agreed upon a provision bill. It appropriates $50,000,000.

The electoral votes of Massachusetts and New York were presented to the vice president to-day.

Serious Accident.

Exciting Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The following telegram has been received by Commissioner of Internal Revenue Raum:

HUNTSVILLE, ALA., Dec. 10.

Yesterday afternoon, in Marshall county, about twenty miles from Huntsville, John B. Hardie and Bassett Young, United States deputy marshals, in company with deputy internal revenue collector Horace J. Baro, with warrants against Jefferson Culbreath, David Lemons, James Crisco and Joseph Crisco, for illicit distilling, came upon the defendants within half a mile of the distillery, and after making inquiry as to the names by the officers, and Joseph Crisco, giving his name, Mr. Hardie said: "I have," and before he could say anything further was shot by Jefferson Culbreath in the head with a shot gun, killing him instantly. Six shots were then fired at Baro, who escaped with a wound in the left side. Young, being with their horses about a half mile off, was unharmed. United States Marshal James H. S. Loss is organizing a good force to arrest the parties, and will do all he can to bring them to justice. I shall accompany this force.

[Signed] P. H. DOWLING,
Revenue Agent.

Commissioner Raum, upon receipt of the above dispatch, telegraphed as follows:

To Agent Dowling:

Telegram received. I wish most energetic measures taken to bring to punishment the parties engaged in resistance to deputy collectors and deputy-marshals, resulting in the murder of J. R. Hardie. Take steps to have every illicit distilley seized and every illicit distiller arrested. If the marshal's force is insufficient employ more men.

A Plucky Woman.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Last night while Mrs. George McNeil was seated in the sitting room, on the second floor of her residence, 148 South Eighth street, Williamsburg, a rough looking man raised the window and entered the apartment. He drew a pistol and demanded her money or her life. Mrs. McNeil said she had no money, and ran into the adjoining apartment, where she secured a revolver. As soon as she reappeared the ruffian discharged one shot, the ball penetrating the fleshy part of her left arm. The plucky woman, taking deliberate aim, fired two shots at him as he made his escape through the window. Mrs. McNeil thinks she wounded the fellow. She was unable to give any description of him.

A Desperado Hung.

BELLVILLE, Nev., Dec. 11.—Charles Marshall, a noted desperado, on Tuesday night last brutally murdered an inoffensive old man named Jack McCann, whom he first shot and then kicked until he was dead. This forenoon, while the sheriff was starting with his prisoner for Aurora, the county seat, a party of citizens rushed upon the sheriff and his posse and forcibly took Marshall from their custody. The prisoner was then conveyed to the outskirts of the town and hanged.

Destroyed by Fire.

LOUISVILLE, Dec. 11.—A Versailles, Ky., special to the Courier-Journal says: At half-past two o'clock yesterday afternoon a fire broke out in the barber shop of Luke Blackburn, colored, situated on Lexington street, up stairs, near the corner of Main. Soon the entire block, embracing ten business houses on Main street with their contents, and five houses on Lexington street, was in ashes. The loss will reach $60,000, mostly insured.

Talk of a Treaty.

MADRID, Dec. 11.—The Imperial says Spain ought to conclude a treaty of commerce with the United States, and if the United States will consent to reduce duties on Cuban sugar and Spanish fruit, Spain will reduce duties on American cereals and flour.

Death of a Good Man.

Political malice has ceased, or pretended to cease, at the portal of the grave of this good old man. Blue Jeans Williams is pretendedly the sincerest mourner over his remains. If men who do this class of infamous detraction have any conscience, it should give them trouble; and if they have any self-respect, it is difficult to see how they can help hating themselves as heartily as they are hated and despised by the decent element of the community in which they exist. New lamps, new hand painted china, new cut glass, new gold band china, new decorated tea and dinner sets, new Majolica ware, new plated silver ware, new toilet ware, new compliments of our three jolly dogs, at Ward's new store, on West Columbia street. Ward's cheap crockery store.

HAPPENINGS.

A Big Railroad Accident Near Sioux City—No Lives Lost.

Richmond Takes Her Rank With the Other Cities of the State.

Disgraceful Assault in the Street on a St. Louis Clergyman.

Two Children Burned to Death—Heavy Loss to Jay Gould by Fire.

Somewhat of a Railroad Accident.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Dec. 10.—After four days of blockade by the snow, the east-bound train on the Fort Pierre line of the Northwestern left Tracy, Minn., on Wednesday evening with 330 passengers on the train, consisting of seven coaches, two baggage cars and two locomotives. At 2:30 o'clock on Thursday morning, five miles east of New Ulms, the axle on the rear tender broke, throwing all the cars except the rear one from the track. One baggage car was partially destroyed by fire, and several cars were badly wrecked. The accident occurred on the level prairie, and the cars tipped over into a snow bank, which broke the force of the overthrow. The passengers were badly shook up, but none were seriously hurt, which is considerable of a miracle, as the train was running twenty miles an hour. The thermometer indicated twenty degrees below zero, and there was considerable suffering from cold. An engine was brought up from New Ulms and the passengers transferred back to that place. Superintendent Sanborn, of the Iowa division, was on the ground, and, under his direction, the track was built around the wreck, and at 3 o'clock, Thursday afternoon, the road was open.

Richmond to Have Letter Carriers.

RICHMOND, Ind., Dec. 11.—The letter carrier system is to be inaugurated in this city on the first of next month, and the arrrangements are now being made to carry it into effect. There are to be six carriers, two principals and four auxiliaries. The principals are to receive $800 and the auxiliaries $400 per annum. The following appointments are announced: Fred Haner and Charles Allen, principals: Joseph L. Rowlett, B. L. Chandler, O. E. Mitchell and W. L. Hunter (colored), auxiliaries. The applicants for these positions were numerous and the appointments do not give satisfaction. There is a great deal of grumbling and many sore heads. Many good republicans object to the appointment of a negro when so many whites wanted the place, and say that there is no good reason why colored men should be so rewarded with appointments.

Christmas Presents.

Ottomans (covered in white) ready for covering at $2 and upwards, at Fliegner's, 33 and 35 Clinton street.

Assaulted—Strange Removal.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 11.—It has just transpired that while the Rev. Dr. Goddell, pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational church, was passing along Tenth street between Pine and Chesnut, early last evening, he was assaulted by two or three ruffians, knocked down and badly beaten and cut about the head. The attack was evidently for the purpose of robbery. but the outcries of the doctor frightened his assailants and they escaped before an arrest could be made.

It is reported this morning that Charles Belcher, founder of the Belcher sugar refining company, of this city, and its president and manager for thirty years, has been removed from his position by a vote of the stookholders. It is not yet known what led to this action.

Hotel Burned.

CAMBRIDGE CITY, Ind., Dec. 11.—Last night at about 12 M., the building known as the American house, owned by James M. Winsett, and occupied by him as a hotel, in Milton, burned to the ground. Nearly all the furniture was destroyed. The saloon part was an entire loss. The loss is estimated at $4,000. Insured for $3,000. The fire engine from this place arrived too late to do any good.

Christmas Presents.

Patent rockers and easy chairs, the largest in the state, at prices to suit everybody, at Fliegner's 33 and 35 Clinton street.

A Brutal Assault.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 11.—Captain J. S. Wise, superintendent of the Memphis packet line, was set upon last night and beaten by some person or persons to him unknown. He is conscious this morning but has been vomiting blood and is in a critical condition. He only remembers receiving a blow on the back part of the head. When found he had two ugly wounds on the face as if struck by brass knuckles. He was not robbed. It is thought some discharged employe attacked him in revenge.

Most Likely a Fatal Fall.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 11.—To-day, while the Hocking Valley train was near Groveport, Mr. Scobel, a traveling man and a resident of Troy. O., left his seat in the rear car and walked off, or fell off, the rear platform; falling upon the track, he very seriously, and perhaps fatally, injured himself. He was taken to the St. Francis hospital.

The Spittoon club will meet at their room this evening, and arrange a programme for the meeting which is to follow in a day or two. Each member is expected to furnish his own pipe.

Mrs. Frankie I. Drake, nee Mrs. Major Drake, who resides with her step-father, Adam Francis, three miles west of the city, was this morning seriously injured by falling down stairs backwards while carrying an arm full of wood up to her room. The injuries were internal. Dr. McCulloch is in attendance.

The grand jury made their final report this morning, and reported six new indictments, as follows: Two indictments, in three counts, against Perry Snurr for murder in the first degree; the same indictments against John Snurr. The reason this was done is that it turned out to be John Mayer, deceased, and not Meyer or Meyers. No doubt but that in the eyes of the law the trial of John Snurr will stand, and not be overturned by any such small technicality. Four other indictments were returned against parties not yet arrested. Over 150 witnesses were examined and nineteen indictments, altogther, returned.

Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The administration is anxious to have something to say about filling vacancies about to occur on the supreme bench. In the first place Mr. Hayes is very desirous of finding a southern republican for the bench, but is greatly discouraged by the lack of proper material in that section. A prominent member of the administration said to your correspondent:

There does not seem to be a republican lawyer in the south who is fit to go on the bench, and of course we cannot appoint a democrat after making the political complexion of the court so prominent an issue as we did in the late campaign. Mr. Hayes has, however, set his heart on giving the south a supreme court judge, and may permit locality to outweigh ability.

SUMMER RAMBLES.

RESPECTFULLY INSCRIBED TO F. H. W.

Happy-hearted, joyous all the summer day,
For Nature's treasures searching, with spirits light and gay;
With bright expectant faces, through the woody dells,
Merrily we wander in grassy fields or vales.

Splashing through the rivulets, cool and mossy brooks,
Frightening with our laughter the lord, of saucy rooks,
Treasuring the ferns with their graceful drooping heads,
Plucking dainty violets, that sweetest perfume sheds.

Weaving pretty garlands for dainty little Miss,
Creeping gently closer to steal—unknown a kiss;
Whom we crown as Queen of Summer, with her sceptre and her book,
And are answered with caresses, and a sweet and loving look.

Or on the noble mountains, wandering alone,
Making friends with Nature, in her palace home;
Lost amid its splendor, and the cool and somber gloom,
Awed in wondering silence, by the cataract's fierce boom.

Oh, Summer! Queen of Seasons, may you always hold the joy
That charms the childish heart of the merry girl or boy;
But the sweetest part of all our Summer's dear delights
Is, recounting them at home, on fierce and wintry nights.

SUMMER RAMBLES

Told by Winter Firesides.

BY FRED. H. WHIPPLE.

NUMBER V.

"Hark! Is not that Ned's bark? It is as sure as I'm alive. I thought we could not tramp all night over this infernal country without finding some trace of him."

These words dropped from the lips of Judd, as, suddenly ceasing his walk, he inclined his head in a listening attitude. Afar off could be heard the barking of a dog, so distant in fact, as to puzzle the listener as to determine which direction it came from.

"Well, Fred, we've beat up every part of these woods, with the exception of what your Uncle Harry called the Holyoke road, without getting any nearer our destination or finding what we are in search of, and I move we go to the roads. We are as likely to find him there as anywhere, and I am not sure but that bark comes from off that way. So here goes, come along."

"We tourists" were indeed in a predicament. Of all picnics in which many people join, commend me to a scientific field meeting. I do not compare that, or anything else, with the hours we passed by the lake side. The things are too diverse for comparison. Nor do I mean to say that for once in a while, a merry masquerade in the glamour of the woods has not unique charms. But a little science gives a zest always fresh, and a flavor always piquant, never cloying, to the enjoyments of a body of fairly well-educated excursionists. To go out with a multitude in the vague expectation of a day's pleasure, even in the most romantic regions, often results in pure weariness of spirit. We are all true heirs of the old hunter races. Our joy is in pursuit; and the more definite the object of chase the keener the pleasure. That is what makes him who has an aim in life the happy man. That is what inspires alike the gold hunter in the sands of California and the planet seeker among the stars of heaven. It is the old instinct, inherited from Nimrod and his fellow-huntsmen. But the point from which I have wandered is this: an excursion should, if we would gain the most and the highest enjoyment from it, have a more distinct purpose than the mere passing of a few hours among pleasant or romantic scenery. Now, gunning was a science with us knights of the quill, in fact anything outside of a dingy newspaper office required the semblance of science—to get at it. And thus it was that on our way from the New Hampshire country, replete with so much that had entertained and amused us, we had stopped over at the lively town of Westfield, only a few miles from Springfield, for a few days hunt with Uncle Harry Smith, a genial, whole-souled, honest and plain-spoken man, carriage painter by trade, but possessing all those peculiarities for a hunter's life that made it dependent upon him to spend half his time with dog and gun in the saddle, or afoot in the forest, an occupation in which he proved quite successful. Uncle Harry dearly loved to call "Ned" in the morning, throw his gun over his shoulder and strike for some lonely spot after game, and he was always sure to return at night with his bag well filled with the fruits of his day's work. But, alas, Uncle Harry was human, and, like many who have become so accustomed to the use and companionship of the rifle, the weapon had become such a part of his nature as to make him careless, and this carelessness was what caused the first dark spot to appear in the record of our otherwise happy rambles. Whither to go this fine morning was a question that troubled our little party. For one I was inclined to extend our rambles a little, and accompany Uncle Harry on one of his hunts, for we had reached the neighborhood when the game season was at its hight. So we resolved that we would spend a day in those delightful localities brimful of interesting objects and associations and abounding in excellent game, and we were early enroute. Turning the nag's head northward we settled down in the vain endeavor to quell the rising anxiety and impatience which continually exerted itself. It was a queer looking crowd we were. One to see us on the road would have imagined us as cambric clad cavaliers with glittering tin spear heads bent with frequent service as climbing staffs. Spangled faries could not have been placed in more dismal plight; the robes of phantoms could not have been more ghastly tattered. In fact we could think ourselves as all possible and impossible characters in sore disorder. But truthfully it could be said,

> "Yet each and all could soothly swear,
> No merrier troup ere rambled there."

Laughing, shouting and singing, we spent the time until Beachnut grove was reached, where Uncle Harry said we would hitch the horses and prepare for the "tramp." He would assist us, he said, in so far as carrying out the last portion of his commands, but after that we must shift for ourselves until he returned from a business trip he anticipated making to a neighboring farm. On second thoughts, he concluded it would be better for us to strike due north until we came to the "Big Tree," which we could not miss, where he would rejoin us. Our first duty, that of preparing our breakfast, was soon performed, the food despatched, and we announced ourselves in readiness for the day's tramp. So at the camp we parted, Judd and I "striking" for the Big Tree at a leisurely gait, and Uncle Harry disappearing up the road, seated in the wagon, his rifle lying under the seat, and "Ned" jogging at the wheel. It all came back to us afterward, just how the "rig" looked, but we thought little of it then. As for Judd he was bound to do some shooting almost before the separation had taken place, and I turned from a rattlesnake's path to see him, gun to shoulder, ready to fire at a magnificent partridge seated a short distance off. Bang! went the fowling piece, and bang! came—what? the echo? We thought so then, but were destined before another sun rose to learn our sad mistake. It is unnecessary to state that Judd missed the bird, but hoping for better luck next time, he reloaded with the best grace possible, and never exhibited his chagrin. And thus we traversed our way to the Big Tree, now some four miles distant, the exact locality of which we were ignorant, but hoped by following directions to reach after a while.

So much has been written about the fair valley of the Connecticut, that the tourist finds almost every rood of its soil already storied ground. Seldom does genius owe so much to its dwelling place, and still more rarely is the debt so richly paid. The scenes which have received their fame at the hands of Samuel Bowles, Dr. Holland and others need no new celebration here; nor does the valley which has been the theatre of so much curious history and the home of so many men of intellectual power. Yet the interest which always attaches to such places communicates somewhat of its own zest to whatever may be newly written concerning them. There are many objects and localities here, the mere mention of which suggests a story or a picture, although the story may never have been written and the picture may never have been born of pencil or camera. The Connecticut valley is full of these thought-compelling objects, cradled between hills, enriched by frequent costly villas, picturesque cottages and handsome ornamental grounds, and it was little wonder I should pause in my tramp that day to gaze afar away to woodland, farm and stream, and become lost in reverie only to be awakened by Judd's hallo in the distance to "come along and not be moralizing all the while." It was an effort to become thoroughly aroused, but the task was soon accomplished, and in a short time we were at the Big Tree. We could not have missed it, the great king of the forest, but we did miss—my Uncle Harry. No trace of him anywhere. What could have become of him? But then, he was only belated, or perhaps the trade he had gone to make had fallen through and he had returned to Beachnut grove to picket the horse. So we waited, at first, cheerfully; gradually we began to fear evil, and at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, when the sun had begun to lower in the west, we reluctantly retraced our way to camp, only to meet another disappointment. Uncle Harry was not there. Here was our day of pleasure now almost gone and only one shot, and that unsuccessful, had been fired. What could have happened? Was our summer rambles to be brought to a close by a tragedy? It was horrible to imagine. Alone, miles from any town, we thought, without guide or compass, and the day fast waning, what were we to do? Now, for a "literary feller," Judd was a passably fair philosopher, and, though his reasoning was peculiar, it was sound and to the point.

"I'll tell you what we'll do" said he, after we had cogitated the matter for an hour. "We'll encamp right here and remain until night. We are near the road, and after the shadows have begun to show themselves we can no doubt discover a light somewhere and make a bee line for it. Then we'll get home and alarm the folks, return and find Uncle Harry." So encamp we did, but not for as long as we had anticipated. It was about 6 o'clock and we were endeavoring to calm our fears in song when the hoof beats of a horse fell upon our ears, distant at first, nearer growing, until the animal was about to pass us, the road laying only a few rods away. I had almost shouted for the lonely traveler to stop, when, with a welcome neigh the horse halted, sniffed the air a moment, and then, could I believe it? made straight for our standing place. Through the gathering darkness we could see a single horse drawing a box wagon, approach, and with another neigh of seeming delight, stop not three feet away as if it intended to always remain there.

"Great God," cried Judd. "That's your Uncle Harry's horse, but where is he?"

Ah, indeed, where was he? The horse was dusty and tired, the reins hung loosely from its back and it bore the marks of having aimlessly ambled for a long time amid the underbush of the surrounding woods.

It was no time for moralizing. Time for action had arrived. Scarcely had we become thoroughly acquainted with the appointments of the horse and wagon when, as if divining our thoughts, the noble animal turned, and, with a look at us, seeming to convey an invitation to follow, began retracing its steps toward the deepening gloom of the woods. Scarcely two miles had been passed, when the rapid barking of a dog was heard, and the mournful trio stopped as if struck by lightning, and here is where the opening remarks of this article were spoken.

Mechanically accepting Judd's bidding to "come along," as law, I followed him and the horse as they quickly drew nearer to the spot from whence the cries seemed to come. In a few moments we struck a road, and a sign post told us it was the Holyoke thoroughfare. Nothing could be seen in any direction that bore signs of life and the barking of the dog, which had been growing plainer and more distinct, had suddenly ceased.

"Hello!" shouted Judd.

"Helloo!" came back the echo.

Discouraged, we were about to turn back, when the sharp bark of a dog was again heard, only a short distance up the road.

With glad cries we hastened thither, and in a moment were in the center of an opening, which afforded space for the rising moon to descend to earth, and then our journey was ended.

There, in the center of the road lay the body of a man, gun by his side, and a large hound stood guard over him, one foot upon the breast of the prostrate being. Horrified, we drew nearer, when, at the sight of us, the canine sent up a whine of delight, and it needed no one to tell us that it was "Ned." With a terrible fear tugging at our hearts, we looked down and beheld the white features of Uncle Harry, now calm and reposed in death. The particulars are too personal to admit of relating, suffice it to say that we bore the corpse home, finding that home after long hours of patient search, when the agonizing news was told. How Uncle Harry met his fate, will never be known. I have often thought it was by the accidental discharge of his gun as he was lifting it from the wagon, for it was empty when we found it, but only "Ned," faithful brute, was with him at the last. His heart was literally blown to atoms, his death instantaneous.

For The Sentinel.

POETRY.

TO SUE VESTA.

BY WINONA RIVERS.

Welcome, my friend, as yet unknown,
We proffer now our hand,
Via THE FORT WAYNE SENTINEL,
As face to face we stand.

Yes, face to face, but passing strange
A shadow-veil between
Is drooping low its misty web,
A filmy, phantom screen.

How strange to read each others thoughts,
Who never met in life,
But buckle on the armor strong—
Be ready for the strife.

Strike ever at those social laws
Which smirk and smile at sin,
For who so smiles in Heaven's light,
Is base and dark within.

For well we know these self-same laws
Fill up the haunts of sin
With husbands, sons and daughters fair,
So gladly welcomed in.

True virtue, then, will ever frown
On both sides just the same,
For neither sex a license have,
And both are all to blame.

The battle o'er, we'll wander on
Thro' fair Utopian fields;
We'll quaff the bright poetic draught
A glowing genius yields.

Or when, on fancy's pinions bright,
We soar beyond the stars:
Our souls, above all lesser things,
Slip thro' the golden bars.

To spread the wings mid finer scenes—
Sealed books to coarser clay;
We'll lightly touch the magic lyre,
And chant the minstrel lay.

A power divine, within the soul,
Is given to us, dear Sue;
O! may we ever use it well,
And to the right prove true.

FORT WAYNE, IND., Dec. 9, 1880.

THERE IS BALM IN GILEAD.

IN ANSWER TO SUE VESTA.

By Maud

There's on earth, a Balm of Gilead,
"A balm to make the wounded whole."
If by Faith thou would'st apply it,
Sure 'twill heal the troubled soul.
Although sorrow be thy portion,
Bow in meekness and in love.
"After many days," rich blessings
May be showered from above.

Though thy past be dark and dreary,
Barren waste, of time and tears;
Trust the Father, in His mercy,
To relieve all doubts and fears.
Plume thy flight for nobler conquest,
Than in brooding o'er the past.
God can still the tempest raging
Now within thy throbing breast.

Bury out of sight, thy sorrow,
"Live for others" while you may,
Heed'st thou not the master calling
Work while yet 'tis called to-day?
Talents many God hath given thee,
Let them not be hid away—
In His vineyard, there is plenty
Room for them in grand display.

Child of sorrow! look around thee!
Heed'st thou not the dirth and woe?
Drink the cup that God has given you
Christ, your Savior, tells thee so.
He it is who hath redeemed you,
Saved your soul from greater sin,
Thank Him for his gracious mercy
And a life renewed, begin.

Gossip About Garfield's Cabinet.

New York Special.

Republican politicians are gossiping freely about the cabinet to be formed by President-elect Garfield. They argue that New York state will have the secretaryship of state, and that, unless the Conkling power is broken, the choice is likely to fall about Andrew D. White, president of Cornell university, now minister to Berlin, whose promotion would be a sop to the civil-service reformers. Mr. White's ambition is to be lodged in that upper berth, and his studies for years have been directed to become versed in diplomacy and statecraft, that his merits for the place may attract attention. He is of the Onondaga race, of which Roscoe Conkling is chief, and has been one of Conkling's adherents. Mr. White is wealthy, cultured and courteous gentleman, a liberal entertainer and an ingenious politician, although commonly classed with the light-waisted school of which Stewart L. Woodford is a sample. Hamilton Fish's name is also freely mentioned, and it is said that, to please the south, Mr. Garfield will probably give a portfolio to Mr. Harrison.

Mr. J. Echter, 210 Chestnut street, Harrisburg, Pa., says: I have been afflicted with rheumatism for five years, and for two years have had a sore on my leg the size of a silver dollar, which nothing would heal. St. Jacob's oil cured the rheumatism and healed the sore.

A Card.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the Rev JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York City.

Revision of Base Ball Rules.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—At the session of the National base ball league held yesterday, the following revisions were made in the playing rules. The pitcher's position is moved five feet further from the home base; the number of call balls is reduced to seven and strikes to three; warning, "good ball," is omitted; substitutes can not take the place of players after the beginning of the game, except in the place of illness or injury; base runner shall not have a substitute run for him under any circumstance; base runner may be put out on returning to his base after a foul hit if toched by the ball in the hands of the fielder after the pitcher has handled it; the visiting club may select one of its employes to umpire a game in case the home club fails to produce the umpire agreed upon.

A Majority of Two.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 10.—Nicholas Ford, republican-greenback, received his certificate of election today as a member of the next congress. The vote as canvassed by the secretary of state shows 21,770 for Ford, and 21,768 for Craig, democrat, giving the former a majority of two votes.

Another Failure.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—The coffee importing house of Bowie, Dash & Co. No. 176 Pearl street, suspended today. No statement is made of the liabilities. The firm was in the syndicate with Arnold & Co. and Kimble, of Boston.

Malt bitters build up the nervous and muscular system, and so overcomes disease.

MALT AND HOPS

THE AGED.—Mental and physical debility of the aged begins with loss of appetite and sleep. These two potent causes of premature and rapid decline have their origin in DEFECTIVE NUTRITION and IMPOVERISHED BLOOD. All other ailments may be warded off if these be restored to a condition of health. To accomplish this beneficent purpose, MALT BITTERS are superior to all other forms of malt and medicine. They are rich in bone and fat-producing materials. They vitalize with new life the process of digestion. They dissolve and assimilate every article of food, thereby enriching and strengthening the blood. They feed the brain as well as the blood, banishing nervousness, melancholy and sleeplessness. For every form of debility of both mind and body of the aged, MALT BITTERS are the purest and safest restorative in medicine.

MALT BITTERS are prepared without fermentation, from Canadian BARLEY MALT and HOPS, and are free from the objections urged against malt liquors.

Ask for MALT BITTERS prepared by the MALT BITTERS COMPANY, and see that every bottle bears the TRADE MARK LABEL, duly signed and enclosed in wave lines as seen in cut.

Philip Kintz, the well known musician and leader of the City band, fell on the sidewalk in front of Myer Bro.'s drug store last evening and broke his left arm. He was taken into the drug store and Dr. W. H. Myers dressed the wounded member and Mr. Kintz was conveyed home.

He intends making his place headquarters for all kinds of fancy candies, and don't you forget to call on him and look over his stock even if you don't purchase.

At an entertainment recently given in the Union Park Congregational church, Chicago, Miss Carrie Johnson, Fort Wayne's talented elocutionist, recited by special request "Lady Clare" and was prevailed upon to give "The Tell-Tale." In the rendition of this selection, Miss Johnson displayed fine abilities. Her imitations were very clever, and took the audience by storm.

The articles in THE SENTINEL of Thursday and Friday meet the approval of every law abiding citizen and complimentary praise is being heaped upon those connected with the office for the stand that has been taken on the evils which are running wild in our midst. It is proposed to keep thes matters before the public until a change for the better is made in the morals of many whose morals are loosely inclined.

Mr. Harry Bender, the Bluffton marble man, has erected one of the finest monuments in this county over the grave of the son of Jacob Sappington in the Odd Fellow's cemetery at New Haven. The monument is solid Scotch granite, is eleven and one half feet high and costs $1,000. Harry is a first-class workman and is turning out some of the finest jobs now being done in this part of the state and has orders for monuments all over the northern counties. His work will compare favorably with that done in any of the larger cities of the state and Bluffton may well feel proud of such a man as Mr. Bender.

The social and oyster supper at the Reformed Men's hall last evening was one of the best attended socials held in this city during the present season, and the young men and ladies enjoyed themselves to such an extent that the next social given by this club will be greeted with a larger crowd than ever. A fine chocolate cake was voted to the most popular man in the audience, and Mr. Cavanaugh was the lucky man. This organization has some one hundred and fifty active members and over six hundred honorary members and stands at the head of all unions of a like character in the state. Its present officers are: Mr. Thomas Cavanaugh, president; Neal McKay, vice president; Ira Thompson, secretary. Dr. Stemen and a gentleman from New York will address the club Sunday evening at their hall.

D'Oyly Carter's London Opera Company.

Gilbert & Sullivan's latest success, Pirates of Penzance, fifty artists, composed of the principal members of the original Fifth avenue, New York, theatre, Pirate of Penzance cast, including the leading artists whom Mr. Carter had in his former company last season. The company being their own orchestra conducted by Sig Intropidi. New scenery, elaborate new costumes, the only company presenting the opera in the country.

Trinity Church—Rev. W. N. Webbe rector, services at 10:30 a. m., 2 p. m., and 7:30 p. m. Strangers invited, cordially [illegible]

AMUSEMENTS.

"THE WIDOW GLASS"

was again presented at the Grand last evening to a smaller but fairly appreciative audience, and passed off smoothly in comparison with the evening before. The leading characters of the cast have gained more confidence and the love and eloping scenes were not quite so tame as those of the first performance. In conversation with one of the leading musicians of the city regarding the opera as a whole, the following was elicited: The music is far superior to that of Pinafore, is written out more carefully and has the elements, when performed by professionals, of a grand success. Those who deserve special mention are Mrs. Brewer, Mrs. DeVers, Miss Jennie Welch and Mr. Stabler. Mrs. DeVers last evening seemed to captivate the entire audience and was frequently applauded. The choruses are good and were well rendered last evening. This is not an operetta, but a legitimate American opera, and in the hands of professionals such characters as "Captain Brass," "Widow Glass," "Irene" and "Lieutenant Ralston" would undoubtedly prove great cards, and Mr. Butterfield would find himself a famous composer. The orchestral music is fine and captivates the audience from the first.

"THE UNKNOWN."

John A. Stevens will appear in his well known impersonation of Harold in the drama of the "Unknown" Tuesday evening and should be greeted with a full house as the papers throughout the country are lavish in their praise of the troupe. The Chicago Journal says:

Mr. Stevens was most heartily applauded in each of his scenes. Of his rendition of the role we have naught to write but praise, no fulsome stereotyped combinations of adjectives should characterise a critique upon Mr. Stevens' "Harold, the Unknown," for the conception of the part throughout savors of intense originality. It is a role which to adequately personate requires the most exalted versatility and genius.

"SAULSBURY'S TROUBADOURS."

Wednesday evening "The Brook," a bright little piece will be presented by the Troubadours and our pleasure loving public will witness something out of the usual routine of plays presented. The New York Daily News says of this party:

The Saulsbury Troubadours have occasioned a renewed interest in the stage representations at this house. They are full of vitality and enjoyment, and contribute the gayest music and the most sympathetic songs, and produce an ensemble of delicious enjoyment which can hardly be found in any other place of intelligent and elegant entertainment.

"THE PIRATES."

The Grand will be occupied on Thursday evening by the "Pirates of Penzance," and those who witnessed the piece before will surely go again while others whose curiosity has been excited by listening to those who have been fortunate enough to witness the piece are determined to witness the performance as presented by D'Oly Carter's company and the Grand will be filled from the gallery to the pit.
